DETAILED ACTION

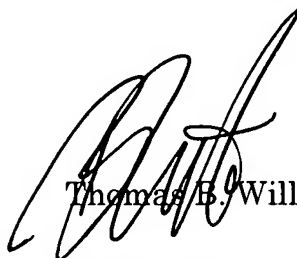

1. In view of the appeal brief filed on 3/8/2007, PROSECUTION IS HEREBY REOPENED. A new ground of rejection is set forth below.

To avoid abandonment of the application, appellant must exercise one of the following two options:

(1) file a reply under 37 CFR 1.111 (if this Office action is non-final) or a reply under 37 CFR 1.113 (if this Office action is final); or,

(2) initiate a new appeal by filing a notice of appeal under 37 CFR 41.31 followed by an appeal brief under 37 CFR 41.37. The previously paid notice of appeal fee and appeal brief fee can be applied to the new appeal. If, however, the appeal fees set forth in 37 CFR 41.20 have been increased since they were previously paid, then appellant must pay the difference between the increased fees and the amount previously paid.

A Supervisory Patent Examiner (SPE) has approved of reopening prosecution by signing below:

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

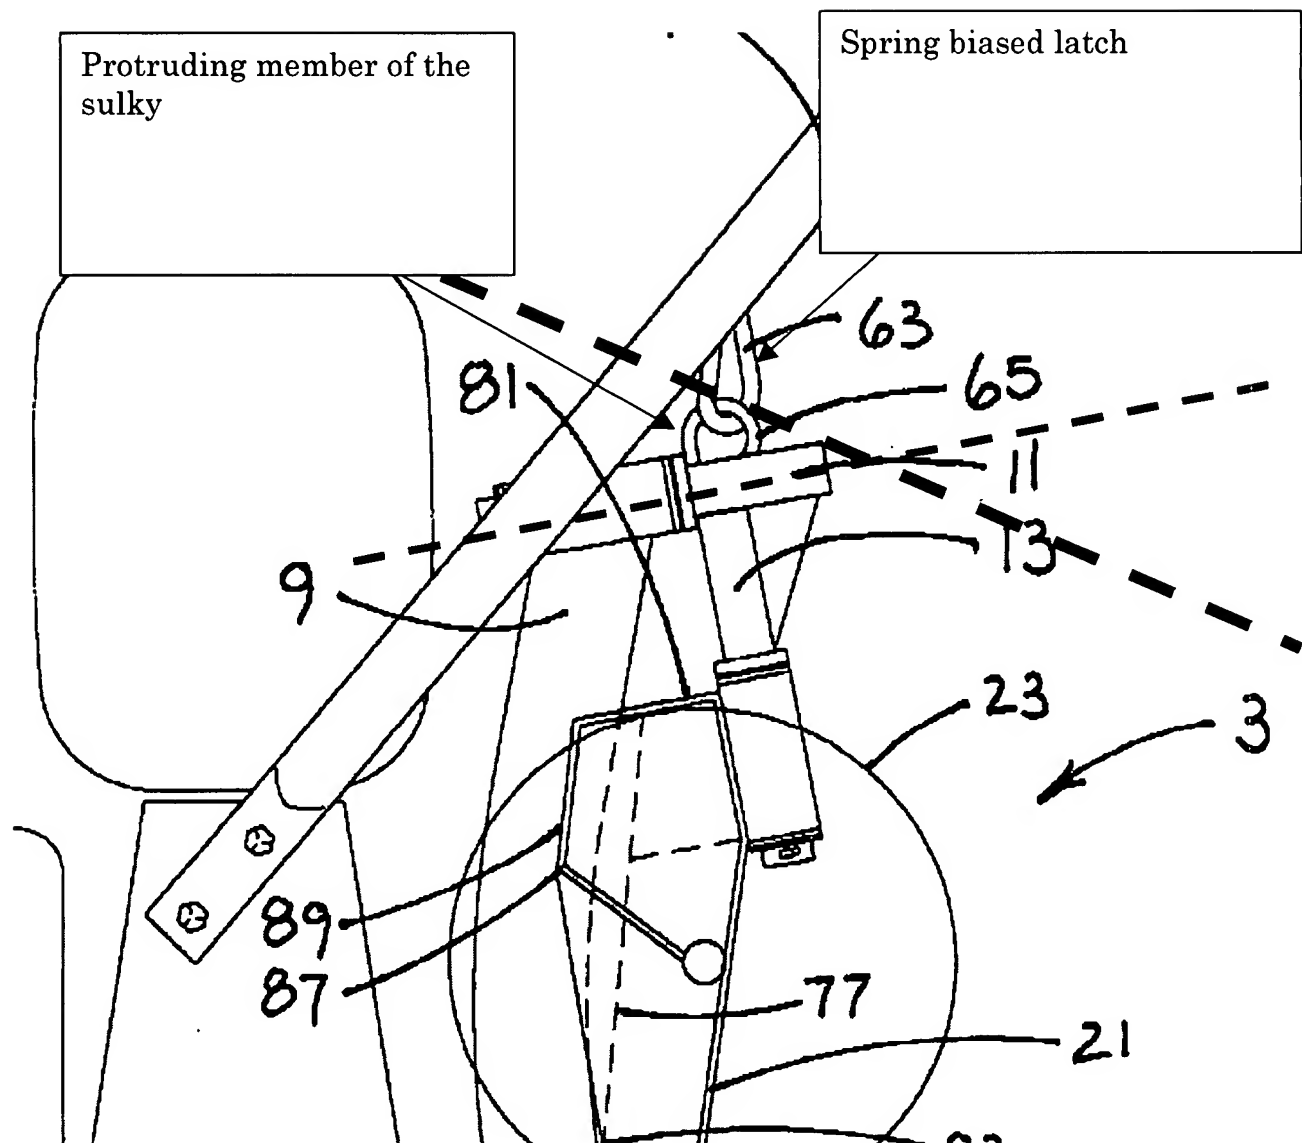

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 27-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Velke ('371), in view of Klingier ('354) and/or Brainerd et al ('834) and/or Gray et al ('911) and/or Dunn et al ('339).

Velke discloses the claimed device: an engine (53, col. 6, ln 8-11); a sulky (3) comprises a substantially vertical pivot axis structure (fig 12, vertical pivot 11), a foot platform (21) pivots relative to a front arm (9) about the same pivot axis above; a latch assembly for coupling a protruding member (65) member of the sulky to a spring-biased latch (81) as defined in the claim & angles shown with dashed lines as shown in the figure below:

Art Unit: 3671

the latch assembly is located under the dashboard of the mower (fig 12); a buttress plate (29), so that a leading portion (79) of the sulky capable of hitting the buttress plate; the sulky extends outwardly from the vertical pivot axis of the sulky (fig 12); except for specifying the link (ref 63) clearly as "carabiner" or "locking snap hook" or "spring biased latch."

Klingier discloses that it is known in the art to provide a “carabiner” or “locking snap hook” or “spring biased latch” to support a weight attached when the spring loaded “gate” of the carabiner is in the latched position.

Brainerd discloses that it is known in the art to provide a “carabiner” or “locking snap hook” or “spring biased latch” (fig 1B, 2A) that is economical to manufacture & durable (col. 2, ln 31-48).

Gray discloses that use of “carabiner” (26) or “locking snap hook” or “spring biased latch” is well known:

“Referring again to FIG. 5, and to the preferred embodiment depicted therein, it will be seen that the distal portion 24 of the line 14 is comprised of a snap hook 26 which can readily be connected and disconnected from bit 28 (see FIG. 6). These snap hooks 26 are well known to those skilled in the art and are described, e.g., in U.S. Pat. Nos. 5,762,282 (locking snap hook or carabiner), 5,738,033 (carabiner like hooks, safety hooks, and connector hardware), 5,727,646 (hook, bracket, carabiner, and other types of hardware that can be readily connected or disconnected), 5,692,306 (carabiner hook), 5,687,535, (hook or carabiner), 5,634,499 (hook or carabiner), 5,608,961 (carabiner hook), 5,570,512 (carabiner hook), 5,560,441 (carabiner or quick link), 5,553,685, 5,526,896, 5,463,798 (self locking carabiner), 5,370,202 (snap lock or carabiner), and the like. The entire disclosure of each of these United States patents is hereby incorporated by reference into this specification.”

Dunn discloses that it is known in the art to provide a lawn mower a supporting means that consist of and/or includes a snap-lock retainers (24 and 25).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to know that the snap-lock retainer / spring biased latch (ref 81) of Velke is a “carabiner” or “locking snap hook” or “spring biased latch” as demonstrated by Klingier/Brainerd/Gray/Dunn that it is well known, and it is widely used across many arts, including the lawn mower art.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 27-30 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

In re applicant's argument in re the "spring biased latch", please see the detailed rejection above.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See form 892.
